A new self-storage facility opened in Mt. Horeb, Wisconsin in the summer of 2023. Developed on a 5-acre site, the facility offers a variety of storage unit sizes to meet the needs of residents and businesses in the area. Vierbicher provided survey and engineering services for the project, contributing to its successful completion.

Our team provided comprehensive survey and engineering services for this project. Land surveying services included a boundary survey, topographic survey, and construction staking to guide site development. Civil engineering services included site planning, grading and drainage design, stormwater management design, and preparation of construction plans and permitting documents. This project is another example of Vierbicher's commitment to providing high-quality services that support the growth and development of communities throughout Wisconsin.
